Construct some bridges.. 6/10 no ramps. It's nearly the same game like the normal 'Bridge Constructor', but in this one sometimes you have to build the same bridge in three different ways to gain badges.. I'm kinda-sorta on the fence on this one. Bridge Constructor Playground is a competent addition to the genre, but it is very short. So, rather than write many many words on a simple premise, I'm going to write out what I wish I'd known before going into the game:

- 1) Many of the badges are mutually exclusive, so you will need to create multiple bridges for each stage.
- 2) You don't need to run cars over bridges; if the truck makes it, it'll give you the badge for the car as well.
- 3) The storm-watcher achievement needs a special sort of non-bridge.. Cute puzzle game about building bridges.. Adorable game. Challenging enough for an Adult, yet accessible to a kid with a brain. Totally fun to watch your bridge Fail. This little game is a winner.. A sweet little physics/bridges game to pop during free minutes. Tiny and not simple enough to make one keep going. Playground part of the title is very true to it's nature - well, you are supposed to do this-and-this but hey, nobody said you have to.. Bridge building, ported game.

It's a port?

It's a port so what. It hold itself up and it is a nice casual game and fun.

Recommend?

Yup.

This is a game for all you thinker out there. Simple levels but also gets pretty challenging but if you experiment a bit you'll work it out. A fun game. Enjoy!. Bridge Construction Playground is another ClockStone's remake (first was Bridge Constructor) of old Chronic Logic's Bridge Builder.

Aim of all those game is simple - you have to build a bridge that withstands trains, cars or trucks, with resources like wood, metal bars, stone pillars and lines.

Despite being very similar to Bridge Constructor, Playground offers more flexibility. Instead of a strict caring about a budget, you can freely build any bridge in any way you like. Every level has also few tasks which requires building a bridge in some specific way - without some resources, with some strict budget or with keeping stress of the bridge under some level.

In comparision to Bridge Constructor, physics is not that hilarious as it used to be. It improved a lot. Graphically this game is bad. But it doesn't matter at all. Music is nice and not disturbing.

Playground is way less challenging than Bridge Constructor, though it is still fun.

The most annoying thing in Playground is inability to move once set joints. You literally have sometimes to delete whole bridge just because you can't move one damn joint. And it was possible in the previous version.

Also in some camera positions it is impossible either to place parts of a bridge or to delete them. You get used to it, but it is very irritating at the beginning.

And the game still lacks a speed up button.

Anyway, it's a very funny and addictive game. Not the best one of the genre of building bridges, but not bad either. But if you like the genre, it's a game just for you.. I got this game in a bundle and decided to play it last night to try it out. It's pretty fun, but not overly challenging, a good introduction to the bridge construction genre of games. Nice easy achievements to obtain, tiny install size and a good way to kill a few hours.

Be aware that this is a direct port of an Android/iPhone app so if that is a deal breaker for you, avoid this game.. An enjoyable and relaxing casual bridge building game. You have an unlimited budget so you can make some crazy bridges, but the real meat of the game lies in beating the challenges (like only making your bridge out of wood or for super cheap. Would probably make a good teaching tool for a kid, too.. you can't build ramps in this game. It sucks. Making ramps was half the fun in the other bridge constructor.

there's also infinite money for some reason. This one is dull and boring. Why no ramps when the game before it had ramps. Save your time and money but more importantly your money. I was duped into thinking this was like a bridge building game that I played around 10 years ago... That game (being 10 years old) is better than this game.

The acheivements in the game do not work correctly. You earn badges depending on material and money spent building a bridge. Even though I met the requirement on several of the badges, I DID NOT GET THE BADGE. Along with this, the game is very short. Also, you cannot see 1st person view of the car as it is driving over the bridge. You can only build flat bridges so no fun ramps or anything when you get bored with how terrible this game is.

Again, do NOT waste your money or your time.. Not a bad game, good for wasting a bit of time when you're bored (until you get bored of the game as well). I got it in a special package so I didn't pay the full retail price and I would recommend that if you want to et this game to wait for a sale as well.

It's your typical construction simulator alongside some side challenges within each level. The art is good and the physics is not bad (although maybe could have been a bit more tweaked at times). The steam acheivements are not bad neither and some seem to be funny when you think about it a bit. It is a rather good challenging game though and works well for most ages.
